At Houston Public Media, we embrace community in everything we do, from reporting on breaking news and long-form investigative journalism, to providing curriculum-based children’s programming and producing uniquely Houstonian talk shows.

We dig deep to understand what matters to you.
We provide the facts so you can make informed decisions.
We celebrate the diverse people and cultures that make our city great.
We lift up underrepresented voices.
We refuse to stand on the sidelines.
We listen to and learn from our neighbors.
We work to be innovative and efficient for you.

Houston Public Media has served Greater Houston—one of the most diverse cities in America—for more than seventy years. As a service of the University of Houston, we provide Houstonians across the globe with free access to informative, educational, and inspiring content through multimedia platforms that include four TV 8 channels (PBS 8.1, Create 8.2, PBS KIDS 8.3 and NHK WORLD-JAPAN 8.4), three News 88.7 channels (NPR HD-1, Classical HD-2 and Mixtape HD-3), houstonpublicmedia.org, and various social media platforms like YouTube.

Houston Public Media is our community’s only non-commercial, locally owned media organization and is made possible by the generous support of donors, foundations, and sponsors.

Every year, more than two million people engage with Houston Public Media through our broadcast channels, podcasts, social media platforms, website, mobile app, and streaming.
Friends,

If we’ve learned anything over the last few years, it’s the importance of community. Community is how we celebrate, mourn, and rebuild after a crisis. It’s sharing a casserole, a cup of milk, our hopes, and our fears. Community is looking out for each other, whether that means checking on an elderly neighbor or shining a light on injustice. Community is telling stories: big ones, small ones, stories about our schools and legislators, even stories about our families and friends. Community is sharing our space, welcoming others into our lives, and taking a stake in our collective well-being.

Community is why Houston Public Media exists. As we reflect on the past year and the accomplishments highlighted in this report, we recognize that nothing we do is possible without our community.

Thanks to that community, we gained significant traction last year. We expanded almost every department, whether by adding staff, resources, or other support. We invested in hiring exceptional talent and in giving our people the tools and opportunities to do their best work.

We conducted research to help us better understand our audience, their perspectives, and their needs, and to develop a plan for the future that puts community feedback at the forefront.
We reported on what matters to you, from the state takeover of HISD to the mayoral race.

With your support, we developed exciting original content, including Dead and Buried, a new digital series created in partnership with PBS Digital Studios. We launched Party Politics on TV, radio, podcast platforms, and YouTube. We celebrated 10 years of Houston Matters, and building on its strength we’re making a bold move—adding more hours of local content to our radio schedule every weekday. Produced by our talented content and production teams, this content will come from our upgraded studios capable of instantly reaching you on all of our broadcast and digital platforms simultaneously.

Houston Public Media expanded its reach and yours with our first regional bureau in Fort Bend County; a new partnership with Texas Southern University's digital radio station, The Vibe; and new-to-Houston content, like international news from our partners at NHK.

Your public media organization stood as a leader on a national stage, reporting on critical stories and serving as a destination for national programs, including Marketplace Morning Report and NPR Music's Tiny Desk Contest on the Road tour.

We laid the groundwork for a strategic fundraising campaign that will enable Houston Public Media to continue producing top-tier content and enable more people to access that content when they want, where they want.

To our delight, we got to spend more time with you this year. You gathered with us for important conversations and fun events, like Science Friday Cephalopod Week and the finale of The Great American Recipe.

As we mark the end of one year and the beginning of another, we are humbled by and grateful for your ongoing trust and support. We are stronger and better prepared for the future because of your commitment to public media.

When it launched in April 2013, Houston Matters quickly became a daily guide to all things Houston. From the economy to public safety, health to education, flood prevention to transportation—if it's important to Houstonians, it's covered on Houston Matters.

This past year, host and producer Craig Cohen talked with experts and ordinary Houstonians about things that matter to them, including newly elected mayor John Whitmire's top priorities, the failed push for school vouchers, the state takeover of HISD, the ongoing drought, and how C.J. Stroud and DeMeco Ryans are breathing new life into the Houston Texans.

To celebrate a decade of in-depth discussions about the people, places, issues, and ideas that define Greater Houston, the Houston Matters team spent the week leading up to the show's anniversary looking back and discussing how Houston's sports, politics, arts, food scene, energy industry, transportation, technology, weather, and environment have—and haven't—changed over the last ten years. The anniversary week culminated with an extended edition of the show highlighting some of the team's favorite reports and conversations, famous guests, and great musical moments.

On April 26, 2023, listeners and friends gathered with Craig Cohen and the Houston Public Media team to celebrate Houston Matters' tenth anniversary at Saint Arnold Brewing Company.

“People have all kinds of fascinating interests here and it's great when we have opportunities to go out into the community and just learn about those interests.”

CRAIG COHEN, HOST, HOUSTON MATTERS

“I appreciate the news you guys give. It’s very important news, very important topics that you might not hear anywhere else.”

NATALIA, LISTENER

Thank you, Houston, for being part of Houston Matters’ first decade!
Houston Public Media is proud to serve one of the most diverse communities in the United States, and to produce and share content that honors the cultures and voices that make up our diverse region.

In an effort to increase its diverse offerings, Houston Public Media partnered with NHK WORLD-JAPAN, the international service of Japan’s public media organization, to provide Houstonians with primarily English-language programming featuring the latest information on Japan and Asia.

"The Houston community is one of the most diverse in the United States and its people thrive on international culture, so it is a pleasure to bring this content to its English-speaking Asian population and the broader audience that wishes to know more about Japanese news, current events, and culture."

JUN TAKAO, PRESIDENT AND CEO, JAPAN INTERNATIONAL BROADCASTING, INC.

"The programming provided by NHK WORLD-JAPAN is consistent with our mission to inform, educate, and inspire the people of Houston with intelligent, enriching, and culturally significant programming. It’s a pleasure to partner with NHK WORLD-JAPAN to bring this high-quality content to Greater Houston viewers."

LISA TRAPANI SHUMATE, ASSOCIATE VICE PRESIDENT AND GENERAL MANAGER, HOUSTON PUBLIC MEDIA

Whether there is a storm brewing in the Gulf, a frost setting in, or another emergency on the horizon, Houston Public Media provides timely and trusted news and information to our community around the clock. Houston Public Media also serves as the media partner for the Houston Regional Amber Alert System and the region’s Emergency Alert System.

Greater Houston’s Regional Amber Alert Program is administered by Texas Center for the Missing and supported by local law enforcement, Houston Public Media and other news outlets, business partners, and the public.

How it works: a law enforcement agency can request a regional or state Amber Alert to inform the public of child abductions and to promote tips and leads for police. These alerts are vetted and issued by Texas Center for the Missing and distributed to select media partners, such as Houston Public Media’s radio station, KUHF News 88.7. We broadcast Amber Alerts to nineteen counties in Greater Houston and are proud to use our reach to help save lives.

KUHF News 88.7 is also the designated Local Primary (LP) station for the Greater Houston–Galveston region, serving as our area’s National Weather Service Emergency Alert System. Our studios not only broadcast timely Emergency Alert System warnings that cover a nineteen-county broadcast reach, we also notify other media outlets of severe weather and other emergencies.

Houston Public Media has a long-standing reputation for being a leader in public safety efforts. As a public safety partner, we use a portion of our over-the-air broadcast signal to help first responders and emergency personnel safely and securely communicate and share information over public television airwaves, even when the power is out.

Local public television stations reach almost 97% of the American public with an over-the-air broadcast signal, providing a critical communications capacity to local first responders.
YOUR HOUSTON, YOUR VOTE: 2023 MAYORAL DEBATE

In October, Houston Public Media partnered with the Hobby School of Public Affairs at the University of Houston and Univision Houston to host the Your Houston, Your Vote: 2023 Mayoral Debate, empowering Houstonians with important insights and information just days before the polls opened for early voting.

Candidates Jack Christie, Robert Gallegos, Gilbert Garcia, Lee Kaplan, and John Whitmire debated topics that impact our community, including crime rates, Hispanic voters' concerns, immigration, and affordable housing. The Your Houston, Your Vote: 2023 Mayoral Debate was moderated by Christina Lee, Houston Public Media's Executive Producer of Enterprise and Investigative Journalism. A panel of journalists including Houston Public Media Senior Political Reporter Andrew Schneider, Univision 45 News Anchor Marcela Peréz Barros, and Editor-in-Chief of The Cougar John Lomax asked the candidates about their views on pressing issues and their priorities for the city if elected.

The debate was simulcast across multiple platforms in English and Spanish, including Houston Public Media's TV 8, Univision Houston digital platforms, and UniMás 67. In addition to the televised broadcast, radio listeners were able to tune in to News 88.7, and online users were able to stream through houstonpublicmedia.org and social media applications.

“"This mayoral debate is a powerful demonstration of our commitment to serving our community and our role as a trusted source of information. We believe that informed citizens make stronger communities, and we are proud to provide a platform where Houstonians can connect with their potential leaders.”

JOSH ADAMS, STATION MANAGER, HOUSTON PUBLIC MEDIA
Houston Public Media is the nation’s first public television station and the region’s source for PBS programming. In addition to bringing you favorites, like Masterpiece and NOVA, we offer everyone in our community 24/7 access to curriculum-based educational content.

PBS LearningMedia offers free educational resources for PreK–12 students and educators. Created in close collaboration with educators and subject matter experts, PBS LearningMedia resources span eight subject areas plus professional development, and they are grouped by grade bands to help users quickly find high-quality materials. Lessons are paired with video content that can be used both at home and in the classroom.

Friday nights are Family Nights on PBS KIDS. Watch, play, and learn with your favorite PBS KIDS characters every Friday from 6 to 8 p.m., or catch a repeat on Saturday and Sunday evenings. PBS KIDS Family Night features movie specials and themed programming, from Rosie’s Rules to Wild Kratts, to help your family end the week on a high note.

At Houston Public Media, we believe we can go farther together. In addition to bringing you NPR programs like Morning Edition and All Things Considered, we work with our partners to produce and share news and other content that makes a difference in your life.

Houston Public Media compiles educational resources, content, and program schedules for students, families, and educators here.
In 2018, construction crews building a new school in Sugar Land, Texas discovered a long-forgotten cemetery containing 95 graves. The graves dated to the years after the Civil War, when hundreds of Black men were sent to convict labor camps in the area to harvest sugarcane.

In 2023, the Texas Newsroom produced an eight-episode investigative podcast series about the discovery in partnership with Brittney Martin and Dot Productions. The podcast explores how the discovery forced the city to confront its history and why, years later, the 95 bodies still had not been identified.

The Sugar Land podcast has been downloaded more than 350,000 times and was included on NPR’s 2023 list of can’t-miss podcasts.

“Thank you so much for taking on the topic of convict leasing and the stories of these men. I am also from Fort Bend County. I grew up driving past the prison farm frequently and have vivid memories of men working in the fields while guards watched over them on horseback. I share your frustration about the subjects we weren’t taught in school and I’m glad that at least Fort Bend has added this to their curriculum. This is such an important part of American history, and we really need to know everything about it.”

SUGAR LAND LISTENER
Houston Public Media worked with the University of Houston Center for Public History and the University of Houston Libraries to develop a series of articles, videos, and student research for the 100 Years of Houston project, made possible by Carey C. Shuart.

100 Years of Houston recounts important milestones and shares the personal stories of our city’s trailblazers and their local connection. The series is a unique interactive laboratory that serves as a learning experience not only for our audiences, but also for students from the University of Houston Center for Public History as they explore how to mine historical collections for storytelling on a multimedia platform in collaboration with Houston Public Media producers.

Houston Public Media helps strengthen public broadcasting across our region and our country through local local reporting, The Texas Newsroom, and leaders’ service on the PBS Board of Directors, PBS Foundation Board of Directors, PBS Engineering and Technology Advisory Committee, and other committees and workgroups.

“Houston Public Media programming has impacted my life with Sesame Street when my child was young. Nature and environmental programs now. News programming to keep me up on what’s happening at home and abroad.”

JEAN RAINOSHEK, ALWAYS MEMBER
Locally and together with partners from across public media and beyond, we produce trusted content that informs, educates, and inspires our community.

DEAD AND BURIED

Houston Public Media was selected to be one of three member stations to partner with PBS Digital Studios as a Regional Digital Center of Innovation, aiming to expand the voices of diverse communities. Collaborating with PBS Digital Studios and the other regional partners allows us to deepen our digital capacity and showcase more underrepresented content creators in our community, both in front of and behind the camera.

In 2023, we launched the first series as part of this project, Dead and Buried. Hosted by writer, actor, and content creator Curly Velasquez, the digital series explores our evolving attitudes towards death, including the growing trend towards openness and honesty about end-of-life care. It aims to break taboos and present cultural perspectives to expand our understanding of one of life’s most natural and profound experiences. Dead and Buried is a collaboration between Houston Public Media, PBS Digital Studios, and Electric Pearl Productions.

Keep an eye out for a new series in 2024, thanks to support from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.
As Greater Houston continues to grow, Houston Public Media wants to make sure we are best serving our sprawling community. Last year, we launched our first-ever regional bureau in Fort Bend County. We now have a reporter getting to know residents while living in and covering impactful stories out of Fort Bend County.

We plan for the Fort Bend County Bureau to be the first of a handful of regional bureaus across Greater Houston, empowering Houston Public Media to deliver local and hyperlocal news and information.

FORT BEND COUNTY BUREAU

See the reporting from our Fort Bend County Bureau.

Hot Stops, an original investigation by Houston Public Media, set out to answer whether Houston-area bus stops ever reach dangerously hot temperatures and how effective bus shelters are at cooling riders during the hottest times of the day.

In a first-of-its-kind pilot study, our team measured temperatures at 21 bus stops in late July and early August. They found that 73 percent of temperature readings inside bus shelters reached thresholds that put people at “extreme” risk for heat illness. In 16 percent of cases, the bus shelter made the heat worse, meaning it was hotter inside the shelter than outside in direct sunlight.

Our team didn’t just report on their findings; they wanted to share potential solutions as well. Houston Public Media reporters investigated ways other communities, like Tempe, Arizona and Brisbane, Australia, have mitigated heat at bus stops. In the process, they discovered that bus shelter shade was on average half as effective at cooling riders as tree shade—one potential solution for METRO and the City of Houston as climate change worsens conditions for Houston’s transit riders.

LOCAL SHOWS

PARTY POLITICS

Party Politics is Houston Public Media’s first truly multi-platform program, delivering a friendly, funny, and casually informative recap of the week’s biggest political news stories across TV, radio, YouTube, and podcast platforms. Co-hosts Jeronimo Cortina and Brandon Rottinghaus delve into the latest news in national and local politics every Friday.

I SEE U WITH EDDIE ROBINSON

Host Eddie Robinson and his team have built a unique platform that gives voice to those who are often unheard. The show explores cultural identity through the stories of people and places and their lived experience. Eddie guides authentic conversations with newsmakers who share their personal histories, their struggles, and their triumphs.

“Just wow! I got to listen to the first episode of I SEE U with Eddie Robinson today and I was blown away. You took a piece of our city’s history and dropped it right in the middle of today’s issues. This episode opened the door for some great conversations at our house and showed me that I’ve got so much more to learn about the city where I grew up. I can’t wait for the next episode.”

ANGELA BISHOP, BOARD OF DIRECTORS MEMBER AND VISIONARY LEADER

I SEE U with Eddie Robinson received a Public Media Award at the 55th annual National Educational Telecommunications Association Public Media Awards ceremony in September of 2023.

The award-winning episode, The Souls of Russell Hornsby, features acclaimed actor Russell Hornsby sharing his vulnerability in a compelling conversation about the challenges of living in truth and finding one’s authentic self while portraying others onstage and onscreen.

THE ENGINES OF OUR INGENUITY

The Engines of Our Ingenuity is a long-running daily radio and digital program about the machines that make our civilization run and the people whose ingenuity created them. Founder John Lienhard and other contributors explore innovations both large and small, successful and not. It is produced in concert with the University of Houston Cullen College of Engineering.

TOWN SQUARE WITH ERNIE MANOUSE

From 2020 to 2023, Town Square with Ernie Manouse covered the events, people, and subjects on the minds of listeners or in the news. The live call-in show created a safe space to discuss the issues that affect our daily lives, never shying away from a tough or controversial topic, and always focused on helping us all gain a better and clearer understanding of ourselves, our neighbors, and our community.

After serving as a space for the community to come together and discuss the day’s most important and pressing issues for three years, Town Square said goodbye in August of 2023.

Curious? There are nearly 3,300 episodes of The Engines of Our Ingenuity ready for you to download or stream.

You’ll be in good company—The Engines of Our Ingenuity is downloaded more than 12,000 times per week.
COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT & OUTREACH

MARKETPLACE MORNING REPORT LIVE FROM HOUSTON PUBLIC MEDIA

Host David Brancaccio and the Marketplace Morning Report team broadcast live from the Houston Public Media studios for a week in October of 2022, reporting news from the Houston area to a national audience. Houston Public Media Affinity Council donors joined Brancaccio for an intimate dinner and Q&A session hosted by Ernie Manouse and Eddie Robinson.

HOUSTON HISTORY MAGAZINE AND THE ENGINES OF OUR INGENUITY

In March of 2023, donors gathered at Houston Public Media for a panel discussion to celebrate the release of Houston History’s latest issue: Innovative Thinkers in the Arts, Education & Politics. The panel discussion centered around Houston Public Media’s radio program The Engines of Our Ingenuity. Panelists included John Lienhard, UH history professor and contributor Cathy Patterson, and former producer Paul Pendergraft.

SCIENCE FRIDAY CEPHALOPOD WEEK

Public radio’s Science Friday invited Houston Public Media supporters to join them at Space Center Houston for Cephalopod Week in June of 2023. Host John Dankosky talked with astronaut Megan McArthur and squid biologist Diana Li about squid, space, and the scientific overlap between the two.
Wrapping up an eight-stop tour, NPR's Tiny Desk Concert hosted the grand finale of its Tiny Desk Contest On the Road series at Houston’s Warehouse Live in July of 2023. Houston Public Media donors joined host Eddie Robinson and a sold-out crowd for performances by winning band Little Moon and other contestants.

HOUSTON MATTERS TENTH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

More than 100 Houston Public Media friends and supporters joined Craig Cohen and the Houston Matters team to celebrate the show’s tenth anniversary in April of 2023. Saint Arnold Brewing Company provided the backdrop and brews to toast the show’s first decade.

STEVE TOBIN’S INTERTWINED AT HOUSTON BOTANIC GARDEN

Houston Public Media donors got an exclusive preview of sculptor Steve Tobin’s one-of-a-kind exhibit at the Houston Botanic Gardens in January of 2023. Donors engaged with the glass, bronze, steel, and clay works representing the unseen power of the natural world and had an opportunity to meet the artist.

THE GREAT AMERICAN RECIPE STOPS IN THE WOODLANDS

The second season of PBS’s The Great American Recipe made a stop in The Woodlands to film its season finale in June of 2023. Houston Public Media’s Ernie Manouse hosted the live event with major donors in the audience as the finalists shared favorite moments, recipes, and memories from the show.

TINY DESK CONTEST ON THE ROAD AT WAREHOUSE LIVE

Houston Matters celebrates its 10th anniversary at Saint Arnolds Brewing Company.

MEASURING IMPACT

Everything we do is powered by you.

Houston Public Media is our community’s only non-commercial, locally owned media organization, and it is made possible by the generous support of donors, foundations, and sponsors.

Whether you give annually or on a monthly basis; whether you’re a Studio Society or Affinity Council member; whether you donated your vehicle, gave while you shopped, or supported Houston Public Media in another way, we thank you. Your generous support makes our mission and work possible.

Houston Public Media was honored with the prestigious “Rising Star” award by Charitable Adult Rides & Services (CARS), the 501(c)(3) nonprofit that administers Houston Public Media’s turn-key vehicle donation program. The “Rising Star” award recognizes radio stations that have renewed their promotion and internal ownership of the program, resulting in an increase in the number of donations and/or the amount of revenue to the station.

LOOKING TO THE FUTURE

We are excited for the year ahead and the opportunities it brings to embrace and serve our community.

We look forward to continuing to work with you—our donors, partners, and neighbors—to be your public media organization and to explore more of the people, places, and topics that pique your interest and enrich your life.

This year, we’ll take the next steps in our efforts to update our studios and capabilities so that you can get the Houston Public Media content you know and trust when and where you want it—whether that’s on TV, radio, YouTube, social media, or elsewhere. We’ll also prepare to launch a new strategic plan that positions Houston Public Media for the future.

We’ll develop more local content in 2024, searching for new opportunities in our schedule and strategic partnerships that help us bring excellent content to our community.

We’ll remain steadfast in our work to report on Houston through the lens of the people who live here, their realities, and the solutions being brought to the table.

We’ll continue our mission to educate, inform, and inspire by sharing the best in educational content with you, our supporters, neighbors, and friends. We’ll partner with donors, foundations, corporations, and others to secure and maximize the resources needed to produce and deliver the quality content you want to see and hear in the places you want to see and hear it.

And we’ll do it all with a focus on innovation and efficiency, with deep gratitude for the people and partners who make our work possible.

CONCLUSION

In Houston, one organization provides trusted news and information, the NPR and PBS programs you love, curriculum-based educational content, and connections to our neighbors and community that you can't find anywhere else—Houston Public Media.

At a time when content can be shared by anyone and reliable information is as much a commodity as copper or wheat, Houston Public Media remains true to its mission to inform and inspire for the love of Houston.

We do it all for—and because of—you.

Thank you for your generous support.

“I shower and get ready for work listening to Houston Public Media. I drive to and from work listening to Houston Public Media. On Saturdays I listen as I work on my lawn, clean house, etc. I feel well informed as to the goings on both locally and nationally and the world as well. I trust the reporting and that is a rare thing these days.”
